Find descriptive words

Pay attention to the descriptive words in a passage. These will help you form a better impression of the subject described in the passage.

TU YOUYOU AWARDED NOBEL PRIZE

6 October 2015

This year's Nobel Prize for Physiology or Medicine has been awarded to Tu Youyou (co-winner), whose research led to the discovery of artemisinin, a crucial new treatment for malaria. Artemisinin has saved hundreds of thousands of lives, and has led to improved health for millions of people. Over 200 million people around the world get malaria each year, and about 600,000 die from it. Artemisinin has become a vital part of the treatment for malaria, and is thought to save 100,000 lives a year in Africa alone.

Tu Youyou, a committed and patient scientist, was born in Ningbo, China, on 30 December 1930, and graduated from Peking University Medical School in 1955. After she graduated, she worked at the China Academy of Traditional Chinese Medicine in Beijing. In 1967, the Chinese government formed a team of scientists with the objective of discovering a new treatment for malaria, and Tu Youyou was among the first researchers chosen. In the beginning, Tu Youyou went to Hainan, where malaria was more common, to study malaria patients. In 1969, she became the head of the project in Beijing, and decided to review ancient Chinese medical texts to find traditional botanical treatments for the disease. Her team examined over 2,000 old medical texts, and evaluated 280,000 plants for their medical properties. From their research, they discovered and tested 380 distinct ancient Chinese medical treatments that showed promise in the fight against malaria.

One medical text from the fourth century suggested using the extract from sweet wormwood to treat a fever. Tu's team tested a collection of dried wormwood leaves but found no effect. They then tried boiling fresh wormwood, and using the liquid obtained from this to treat malaria, but this did not work either. Their project got stuck. However, Tu Youyou would not acknowledge defeat. She analysed the medical texts again, and by chance, she found one sentence suggesting a different way to treat the wormwood. She concluded that boiling the sweet wormwood apparently destroyed its medical properties.

Using a lower temperature to draw out the extract, she found a substance that worked. After failing more than 190 times, the team finally succeeded in 1971. Tu Youyou and her team members even insisted on testing the medicine on themselves to make sure that it was safe. Later, the medicine was tested on malaria patients, most of whom recovered. This medicine, which was called artemisinin, soon became a standard treatment for malaria.

According to Tu Youyou, the discovery of artemisinin was a team effort. Upon hearing that she had been awarded the Nobel Prize, she said, "The honour is not just mine. There is a team behind me, and all the people of my country. This success proves the great value of traditional Chinese medicine. It is indeed an honour for China's scientific research and Chinese medicine to be spread around the world."

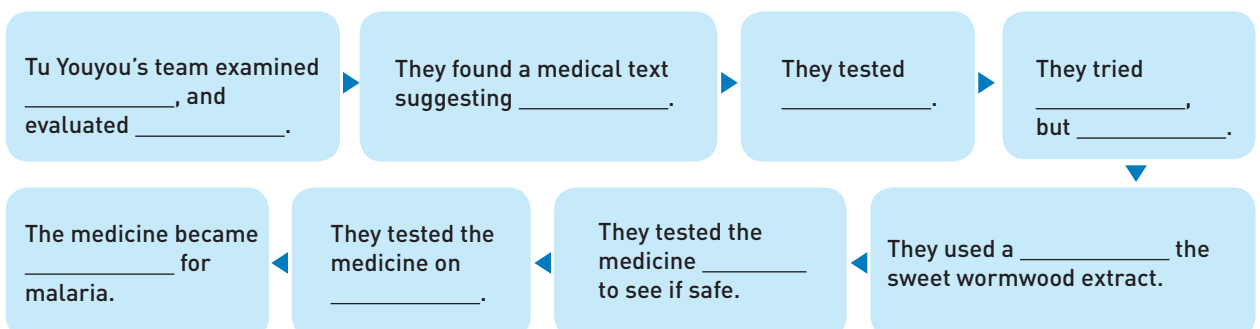

3 Circle the answers to the questions below.

Introduce someone you admire

- 1 What do you know about Albert Einstein? Read the text and complete the timeline. Then introduce Einstein's life story and achievements in your own words.

THE MAN WHO CHANGED OUR UNDERSTANDING OF THE UNIVERSE

Albert Einstein, who is perhaps the greatest scientist in modern physics, is often considered one of the smartest men who ever lived. He made numerous contributions to the world, the most well-known being the general theory of relativity and the famous formula $E=mc^2$. Einstein was not only a genius; he was a courageous and kind figure loved by many people.

This gentle genius was born in Germany on 14 March 1879. When he was 16, he tried to enter university in Switzerland, but failed due to his low scores in the general part of the entrance exam, despite obtaining exceptional scores in maths and physics. After studying for another year, he managed to pass the exam, entering university in 1896 and graduating in 1900.

After two years of looking for work as a teacher, Einstein took a job as a clerk in the Swiss patent office. While working there, out of a strong passion for knowledge, he continued to study, earning a doctorate in physics in 1905. That same year, which was later recorded as a miracle year in science, he published four extraordinary physics papers. Following this, he gradually became famous throughout the world as the new Isaac Newton. After four years, he was able to quit his job at the patent office and enter research full-time at a university. In 1922, he was awarded the 1921 Nobel Prize for Physics for his explanation of the photoelectric effect.

Circumstances changed in 1933, when Hitler came to power in Germany. Einstein, who was Jewish, found the doors of academic institutions closed to him. As a consequence, he had to flee Germany. After spending time in Europe, he finally took up a position as a researcher at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, USA. Following that, he continued to make great achievements in physics and mathematics.

To the public, he was seen as a slightly odd-looking but kind and funny man. He had a thick moustache and long white hair, which sometimes stood on end as though he had just received an electric shock. Although he was a genius, he sometimes forgot things, like his friends' birthdays. But despite his peculiarities, he was loved by his friends and neighbours. There is even a story about how he helped a little girl who knocked on his door and asked for help with her homework. In fact, Einstein often encountered people on the street who would stop him and ask him to help explain things. After many such occasions, he finally started saying, “Pardon me! Sorry! Always I am mistaken for Professor Einstein!”

On 18 April 1955, it was reported that Einstein had passed away, and the whole world mourned the great loss of a brilliant scientist.

Born in Germany

 - ✓ Does the writer tell an impressive story of the person's life?
 - ✓ Does the writer say why the person is great?
 - ✓ Does the writer sum up how he/she feels about this person?

UNIT 2

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

The best way to predict the future is to create it.

—Peter Drucker

In this unit, you will

- 1 read about living in a smart house.
- 2 listen to and talk about predictions.
- 3 read about the pros and cons of advances in technology, and write your opinions.
- 4 explore the future of technology.

Look and discuss

- 1 What might the picture be about?
- 2 What are your predictions about the future?
- 3 What might be some of the advantages and disadvantages of life in the future?

Exchange views on smart homes

1 Before you read, discuss these questions in groups.

- 1 What does it mean when we say that something such as a phone is “smart”?
- 2 What do you think a “smart” house can do that other houses cannot?

Identify purpose and audience

The types of phrases used in a passage help identify its purpose. For example, the phrase in my opinion tells us that the passage is likely meant to persuade. And a text that uses imperatives is likely meant to instruct. A passage’s content helps identify its audience. For example, a passage that gives tips on looking after pets would have pet owners as its audience.

2 Skim the text and answer these questions.

- 1 What is the purpose of the text?
- 2 Who is the intended audience of this text?

SMART HOMES TO MAKE LIFE EASIER

Have you ever forgotten to lock the door of your house? Or, have you ever forgotten to switch off the TV or computer? These kinds of things happen to us all the time, waste resources, and can sometimes lead to problems. However, in the not-too-distant future, we will be living in smart homes that will lock the door for us when we are away and remember to switch off the TV when we forget. These smart homes will keep us secure, save us energy, and provide a more comfortable environment to live in.

Intelligent Controls

Today, we have to use switches for our lights, knobs for our appliances, and remote controls for our TVs and air conditioners. In the future, we will be using advanced technology every day for automatic control of just about everything in our home. The future home will use integrated sensors to tell when you leave home each morning, and then go into an energy-efficient mode all by itself. You will no longer have to think about turning switches on and off yourself. Your home will also learn your daily routine and preferences, so everything will be ready for you when you get home each evening. Your lights will come on the instant you enter the door along with your favourite music or TV programmes, and you will find your dinner already prepared for you. All controls will respond to voice commands, so if you want to change your routine, you just say aloud what you want and the home system will obey.

Regular Health Checks

In addition, your smart home will be monitoring your health for you every day. Your bed, for example, will record how well you sleep every night. It will also be checking your body weight. If you start to have sleep or weight problems, it will send a warning to your phone. It will also give you suggestions on a healthier diet and how to sleep better. Smart toilets will be keeping constant track of your health as well. They can warn you early on if there is something abnormal or if you have a critical illness, such as cancer, and potentially save your life.

No More Disasters

Smart homes will be able to prevent serious damage from accidents. For example, if a water pipe starts leaking, or if there is a short in the electrical wiring, your smart home will detect it and provide you with the relevant information. This way, you will be able to fix the problem before your home becomes flooded or catches fire.

This smart technology is not a fantasy. Many of these new innovations are already available and being used in some homes. In this sense, the home of tomorrow is already the home of today. Nevertheless, it will take some years before most new homes begin to use this new technology.

3 Read the text again and fill in the table below.

In the future, what will smart homes do about ...?
doors		dinners
TVs, computers		beds
water pipes, electrical wires		toilets lights, favourite music, or TV programmes

4 Complete the summary using the correct forms of the words from the text.

A smart home is one that i_____ computers into the structure of the building itself. In this way, many of the things that we now do ourselves will become a_____. For example, the smart home could control the air conditioning and lights so that you would no longer have to turn s_____ on and off, making your home more energy-e_____. SHOULD WE FIGHT NEW TECHNOLOGY?

This morning, I saw the shocking headline: “Passenger Dies When Car Crashes in Driverless Mode”. In the article, various people said that the public should oppose the idea of developing driverless cars. They said that some advances in technology were unnecessary and could even be dangerous. Hence, we should cease accepting technology just because it is new. The newspaper reported that the car company had already apologised for the accident, but the families of the deceased said it was not enough. Nevertheless, the company still claimed that most people would be travelling in driverless cars one day soon.

On the one hand, there are many different groups of people around the world who live happily in the absence of new technology. Probably the most well-known are the Amish, a group of Christians living in rural America. They do not own or drive cars, watch TV, or use the Internet. They have lived mainly as farmers since the 18th century, and they will probably be living the same way in the distant future. They advocate a simple life with an emphasis on hard work, family, and community. They think that is better than caring about luxuries or following the lives of the rich and famous. It could even be argued that the Amish’s quality of life is better since they live in and appreciate the natural environment rather than living in large, polluted cities.

On the other hand, new technology has provided people everywhere with many benefits over the years. For example, the latest weather-tracking computer programmes give people lots of warnings about potential natural disasters, which saves many lives. Moreover, the Internet has made it possible for friends and family to keep in touch easily even if they are on opposite sides of the world. It has also made finding opportunities in life much easier, as it allows people to make larger networks of friends through using social media.

Personally, I have benefited quite a lot from technological advances. I found my career as an AI designer through a social media network. My health monitor, which I wear all the time, has also helped me get into the best shape of my life. Of course, when new technology changes the way we live, it can be a scary prospect. Nevertheless, I will always look on the positive side of change and accept it rather than resist it.

- 2 The Amish avoid new technology because they do not want to have good lives. T F
- 3 Many disasters have been prevented by weather-tracking computer programmes. T F

- 1 Which careers are you interested in?
- 2 How might future advances in technology change those careers?

- a description of the future career
- the advantages and disadvantages of the career
- the preparations that are (or are not) needed for the career
- drawings or photos illustrating the career
- a greeting and closing

Use the letter below to help you.

Dear Past Bingbing,

Hi! I'm Bingbing, your future self! I know that you are really worried about your future career, so I wanted to write this letter to put your mind at rest.

I'm sorry to say that you won't become a pilot as you wanted. In the future, large passenger airplanes will fly themselves and won't need pilots. But there is a big problem in the future that you don't have now: no one uses cars anymore—they use personal jet packs. As you can imagine, the skies over the city get pretty busy! Someone needs to control all these people so they don't have accidents. And that's what you do: you're a jet pack air traffic controller.

One really good point about your job is that you don't have to leave home. Instead, you'll use a virtual reality headset and microphone to do your job while you are sitting on the sofa drinking tea. But you will have to work on your people skills, as you will be talking to people all day. The bad point? Too many jet packs in the sky! Sometimes it can be kind of tense, and some people don't like to obey the rules or be told what to do.

All in all, I think you'll be happy with this job. But of course you will, because you're me! Stop worrying! Your future is going to be great. Trust me.

Best regards,
Future Bingbing

UNIT 3

FASCINATING PARKS

- A Land of Adventure
- Man at Peace with Nature
- A Summer Where the Sun Never Sleeps

Use subheadings

Good subheadings catch the reader's eye and make him or her want to read more. Working out the idea behind the subheadings can help you better understand the structure and the key points of the text.

1 _____

I wake up to the sound of the wind buffeting the cloth of my tent. Even though the sun is brightly shining, telling whether it is morning or night is impossible. I'm above the Arctic Circle, where in summer the sun never sets. Checking my watch, I see that it is 7:30 a.m. I leave my tent and walk over to the mountain edge. Spreading out before me, branches of the Rapa River flow through the valley below. I'm in the remote far north of Sweden in Sarek National Park, a place with no roads or towns.

2 _____

Sarek's mountains used to be covered by vast sheets of ice. Around 9,000 years ago, this ice melted, leaving behind about 100 glaciers. Soon after, reindeer began to arrive. Following the reindeer were the Sami people, who made this territory their home. Getting here is quite difficult, so apart from the Sami very few people have ever seen Sarek. In 1909, Sarek was made a national park in order to keep the land in its natural state. Though the Sami are allowed to continue their traditional way of life in the park, no one else can live here, and all new development is banned within park boundaries. At the far side of the valley, an ancient Sami cottage is visible. Close by, there are a few reindeer feeding on grass.

3 _____

For hundreds of years, looking after reindeer was a way of life for the Sami. They used the reindeer's meat for food, their bones for tools, and their skin for making clothes and tents. Since reindeer were always on the move, the Sami would pick up their tents and accompany them. Today, most Sami have houses in villages near Sarek and live a modern life just like their neighbours. But every spring, a small number of Sami still follow their reindeer into the valleys of Sarek, living in tents or old cottages and enjoying their traditions. I am not a Sami, but in Sarek I've adopted some of their habits. For example, this morning my breakfast is flat bread warmed over a fire, dried reindeer meat, and some sweet and sour berries that I found growing near my tent.

4 _____

After breakfast, I pack my bag and set out again. Since I must carry all of my food and supplies with me, my bag weighs about 30 kilograms. If today is anything like yesterday, it will be full of sweat and hard work as I hike over this difficult land to my destination on the other side of the valley. However, I cannot complain. Being in such a beautiful and wild place makes me feel blessed to be alive. Here I am, alone under this broad sky, breathing the fresh air, and enjoying this great adventure. What could be better?

3 Read the text again and answer these questions.

- 1 How many hours a day does the sun shine in summer in Sarek?
- 2 What steps has the Swedish government taken to keep Sarek in its natural state?
- 3 How has life changed for the Sami? Why might so few Sami want to live in Sarek?
- 4 Why does the writer think the sweat and hard work is worth it?
- 5 Would you like to visit Sarek? Why or why not?

4 Are these senses used to describe Sarek in the text? If so, explain how.

Sight	Touch	Smell	Taste	Sound
-------	-------	-------	-------	-------

5 Complete the passage using the correct forms of the words from the text.

Today, most Sami have left their ancient c _____ in the mountain valleys and live a modern life in villages near Sarek instead.

To keep its natural state, except for the Sami, no one is allowed to live in Sarek, and all new development is b _____ within the park b _____. It is hoped that Sarek National Park will always remain as it is, natural and beautiful.

6 Work in groups. Discuss these questions.

BioBlitz: Life in 24 Hours

This video shows a BioBlitz in Rock Creek Park, which runs through Washington, DC. “Bio” means life, while “blitz” means a quick, energetic effort to do something.

BEFORE YOU WATCH

Work in groups. Use the phrases in the box to describe what is going on in the photos, and then discuss what you think a BioBlitz is.

- park ranger
- people wearing orange vests
- a person holding a frog
- a woman showing how to use a butterfly net
- an insect trying to escape a Petri dish (培养皿)
- a man taking photos

WHILE YOU WATCH

Decide if the following statements are true (T) or false (F).

- 1 Dr Pimm says, “The extraordinary thing about this BioBlitz is just how little stuff there is here! There really aren’t many wild animals here.” T F
- 2 Park rangers show a group how to catch frogs. T F
- 3 David Littschwager is taking photos of insects. He says, “I don’t like spiders.” T F
- 4 Even at the end, there were a lot of plants and creatures that they couldn’t identify. T F
- 5 The real purpose of the BioBlitz is to get people interested in the biodiversity that’s all around them, even in their own backyards. T F

AFTER YOU WATCH

Discuss these questions in groups.

- 1 This BioBlitz was conducted in the middle of a large city. Do you think there is as much biodiversity in your city or town? Why or why not?

UNIT 4

BODY LANGUAGE

What I hide by my language,
my body utters.

—Roland Barthes

In this unit, you will

- 1 read about the function of body language and its implications in different cultures.
- 2 hear and talk about how people use and understand body language.
- 3 describe how people use body language to express meaning.
- 4 appreciate the art of non-verbal humour.

Look and discuss

- 1 What might the people be doing in the photos?
- 2 What do you think they might be feeling?
- 3 When and how do you use body language to convey meanings?

Understand body language

- 1 Choose five sentences and act them out without speaking. Can your partner guess what you are trying to communicate?

Hello!	Goodbye!	Come here!	Go away!	Too expensive!
I'm surprised!	I'm tired.	I'm confused.	OK!	Good luck!
I'm happy!	I'm upset!	I'm sad!	I forgot!	You're great!

- 2 Read the text and fill in the table on page 39.

LISTENING TO HOW BODIES TALK

We use both words and body language to express our thoughts and opinions in our interactions with other people. We can learn a lot about what people are thinking by watching their body language. Words are important, but the way people stand, hold their arms, and move their hands can also give us information about their feelings.

Just like spoken language, body language varies from culture to culture. The crucial thing is using body language in a way that is appropriate to the culture you are in. For example, making eye contact—looking into someone's eyes—in some countries is a way to display interest. In other countries, by contrast, eye contact is not always approved of. For example, in many Middle Eastern countries, men and women are not socially permitted to make eye contact. In Japan, it may demonstrate respect to look down when talking to an older person.

The gesture for “OK” has different meanings in different cultures. In Japan, someone who witnesses another person employing the gesture might think it means money. In France, a person encountering an identical gesture may interpret it as meaning zero. However, you should avoid making this gesture in Brazil and Germany, as it is not considered polite.

Even the gestures we use for “yes” and “no” differ around the world. In many countries, shaking one's head means “no”, and nodding means “yes”. By comparison, in Bulgaria and southern Albania, the gestures have the opposite meaning. There are also differences in how we touch each other, how close we stand to someone we are talking to, and how we act when we meet or part. In countries like France and Russia, people may kiss their friends on the cheek when they meet. Elsewhere, people favour shaking hands, bowing from the waist, or nodding the head when they meet someone else.

Make inferences

Sometimes a passage does not say something directly. However, you can figure it out by looking at the clues in the passage.

Some gestures seem to have the same meaning everywhere. Placing your hands together and resting them on the side of your head while closing your eyes means “sleep”. A good way of saying “I am full” is moving your hand in circles over your stomach after a meal.

Some body language has many different uses. Perhaps the best example is smiling. A smile can help us get through difficult situations and find friends in a world of strangers. A smile can break down barriers. We can use a smile to apologise, to greet someone, to ask for help, or to start a conversation. Experts suggest smiling at yourself in the mirror to make yourself feel happier and stronger. And if we are feeling down or lonely, there is nothing better than seeing the smiling face of a good friend.

Body language/Gesture	Meaning	Country/Region
Eye contact between men and women	Not polite	Middle East
Looking down when talking to someone
OK sign
Kissing on the cheek
Placing your hands together and resting them on the side of your head while closing your eyes
Moving your hand in circles over your stomach after a meal

3 Read the text again, and then discuss these questions.

- 1 How is the body language mentioned in the text interpreted in China?
- 2 Can you think of an example of body language that is appropriate in China but might be misunderstood in another culture?
- 3 What advice on body language can you give a foreign friend on his/her first trip to China?

4 Watch the video Smile Trial, and then discuss the questions in groups.

- 1 Smiles can be used to hide feelings like anger, fear, or worry. Can you describe a situation where you might smile when you don't mean it?
- 2 Apart from fake smiles, is there any other kind of body language that can sometimes be fake?
- 3 Which is a more reliable guide for understanding someone's feelings, their body language or the words they speak?

Build up your vocabulary

- 1 Fill in the table with different forms of the words. Refer to a dictionary if necessary.

When we think about nonverbal behaviour, or body language, we think about communication. When we think about communication, we think about _____. So what is our body language _____ to others? Social scientists have spent a lot of time looking at the effects of our body language. We make assessments and inferences from body language. And according to those judgements we _____ one person and dislike another. So body language provides external _____ that are influenced by internal thoughts and feelings. Scientists have found that when we feel proud and powerful, we usually straighten up to make ourselves bigger. _____, when we feel powerless, we tend to slump, making ourselves smaller. It is obvious that our minds can influence our bodies. But is it also true that our bodies can affect our minds? Scientific experiments show that if we make powerful _____ long enough, we may actually feel more powerful. People who remember to use positive body language are more likely to feel positive _____, so some scientists suggest that we use our bodies to try power posing to help _____ our feelings of shyness and powerlessness.

Discover useful structures

- 1 Look at the examples below, paying attention to the italicised parts. Find other examples from the reading text.

Reading body language is not an easy task. It can be _____ because interpreting the signs that another person shows requires _____. In this sense, it can be compared to a doctor _____.

_____ is also key to reading people's body language accurately. For example, when _____, some people avoid eye contact. By contrast, others may _____ eye contact even longer than usual.

- 4 Talk about the body language you can read from the following pictures. Use at least one -ing form for each picture.

Explore body language

- 1 Look at these photos and discuss what you think each person is communicating.

- 2 Discuss when and where people need to use body language to communicate effectively.

- 3 Listen to a conversation about body language. Then answer the following questions.

- 1 How did the man get the idea of using gestures to communicate?
- 2 What did the police leader tell his team by using gestures?
- 3 What did the woman say about the acting classes that she's been taking?
- 4 What did the man mean by saying "It's good you tried" at the end of the conversation?

- 4 Listen to the conversation again. Are the following statements correct inferences from the conversation?

- 1 The two speakers are married.
- 2 Making too many gestures in communication is not polite.
- 3 The police team were probably successful in catching the criminals.
- 4 Both speakers think body language is useful.
- 5 The woman is not very confident about her silent acting ability.

Infer meaning

Sometimes things are not said directly, and so you must guess the meaning, relationship of the people, or context. You can do this by:

- drawing conclusions from the background information you already have.
- looking at clues that tell you the context.
- using logic to work out the meaning.

- 5 Act out a scene using only body language to communicate. You may follow these steps to complete your performance.

- 1 Form into groups of four. One of you is the performer, and the others are observers.
- 2 The performer writes down a situation and some messages to convey through body language.

- 3 The performer acts out the scene and the observers individually write down their thoughts without talking to anyone else.
- 4 The actor reveals the situation and messages, and the group compares notes. Use the table below to clarify any misunderstandings or different answers.

Asking for and giving clarification

What did you mean by ...?	In other words ...
So you mean ...?	What I meant was ...
So did that mean ...?	What I was trying to say was ...
What I don't quite understand is ...	Does that make sense?
Could you explain ...?	Is that clear?
Could you give me an example?	I can tell that ...

Pronunciation

1 Read the quotes and notice the pause after each sense group.

- 1 There are four ways, | and only four ways, | in which we have contact with the world. | We are evaluated and classified | by these four contacts: | what we do, | how we look, | what we say, | and how we say it. —Dale Carnegie
- 2 If language was given to men | to conceal their thoughts, | then gesture's purpose | was to disclose them. —John Napier
- 3 Body language is a powerful tool. | We had body language | before we had speech, | and apparently, | 80% of what you understand in a conversation | is read through the body, | not the words. —Deborah Bull

2 Read this passage. Then mark “|” where it needs a pause.

Life is a stage, and we are all actors. This is also true when you are in a foreign land. Acting can help you communicate even if you do not know the language. For instance, one day a Chinese lady who was babysitting her grandchild in America went to a supermarket to buy some beef. She was confused to see all kinds of meat there and did not know which ones were beef. She asked a clerk by putting both hands up and saying “Moo! Moo!” The lady got what she wanted even without saying a word of English.

-  3 Listen to the texts above and see how well you read.

Describe classroom body language

-  1 Look at the questions. Then read the text on page 44 and try to answer them.

- 1 How does the teacher know what students are thinking?
- 2 According to the teacher, what is some students' favourite activity?
- 3 What does the phrase “who knows what” mean?
- 4 Why does the teacher think body language is important?

HOW DO I KNOW MY STUDENTS'?

As an educator, people often ask me how I know what is going on in the minds of my students. Many students are quite shy and don't speak all that much. At the same time, in a classroom of more than forty students, it is hard to have many one-on-one conversations with each person. So, how can I really know what makes each student tick?

My answer? I look at their body language.

It is easy to recognise when students are interested in a lesson. Most tend to look up and make eye contact. When I make a joke, they smile. When I talk about something difficult, they look confused. I know when students are really interested, however, because they lean forward and look at me. People have a tendency to lean towards whatever they are interested in. So if a student has his head lowered to look at his watch, it implies he is bored and just counting the minutes for the class to end. If two friends are leaning their heads together, they are probably writing notes to each other. Of course, not everyone who looks up is paying attention in class. Some students look up, but there is an absence of eye contact. Their eyes barely move, and they always have the same distant expression on their faces. It is as though they are asleep with their eyes open.

Some students are amused by something else. They spend all their time looking anywhere but at me. Then again, some students' favourite activity is daydreaming. With their chins on their hands, they occupy themselves by staring out of the window or up at the ceiling. They are certainly interested in something, but who knows what. The main thing is reminding distracted students that they need to pay attention in class.

While it is easy to perceive when students are interested, bored, or distracted, it is sometimes much harder to distinguish when students are troubled. Students who are angry, afraid, or experiencing anxiety may have their arms crossed in front of their chests and their legs closed or crossed, like they are guarding their bodies. Students who are sad or worried will nearly always wear a frown. They may also hide their faces in their hands like they are embarrassed or ashamed. Some students act this way merely because they are afraid of being called on by the teacher. However, if a student does not bother to brush her hair and her eyes are red from weeping, then I can infer that there are deeper issues at work. It could be that she is having serious conflicts with other students or at home. Whatever it is, I know I need to inquire and assess what is going on.

Ultimately, my duty is helping every student to learn. Their body language lets me know when to adjust class activities, when to intervene, and when to talk to students individually, so they can all get the most out of school. Reacting to body language is an important component of being a teacher.

2 Match the body language with the meanings. Write the letters A–J on the lines.

- | | | | |
|----------|---|----------|---|
| _____ 1 | Looking up and making eye contact | A | very interested |
| _____ 2 | Leaning over to look at one's watch | B | bored |

| _____ 4 | Leaning forward and looking at the teacher | D | sad or worried |
| _____ 5 | Looking up, but no eye contact, no expression | E | distracted |
| _____ 6 | Looking away | F | writing notes |
| _____ 7 | Chin on hand, looking out of the window | G | serious problems |
| _____ 8 | Looking down, arms or legs crossed | H | like they are asleep |

| _____ 10 | Hair not brushed, red eyes | J | angry, afraid, or experiencing anxiety |

3 Look at the following photos. In groups, discuss what these people are doing and what their body language is telling you.

4 Draw someone you know. Show his/her body language in your drawing.

5 Write a passage to describe the body language of the person in your drawing, and explain what his/her body language tells us.

6 Exchange your draft with a partner.

- 1 Use the checklist to help you review your partner's draft.
 - ✓ Is the person properly identified?
 - ✓ Is the description clear?
 - ✓ Does the writer give his/her impressions of the feelings and personality of the person in the drawing, and also explain why he/she has these impressions?
 - ✓ Does the writer use correct grammar, punctuation, and spelling?
- 2 Take your draft back and revise it.

7 Share your drawing and description with the rest of the class.

Assessing Your Progress

- 1 How important is body language? Complete the passage with the correct forms of the words in the box to find out.

crucial perceive lack component demonstrate interact stare at embarrassment

There are three _____ in any face-to-face communication: words, tone of voice, and body language. It is said that most of what we communicate with others is nonverbal. So when _____ with people, _____ the message conveyed by body language is _____. You cannot succeed in business and social encounters if you employ inappropriate body language. For example, _____ someone too long can be interpreted as a threat, standing too close may cause _____ and uneasiness, and touching your neck when talking to others probably _____ that you feel nervous and _____ confidence. Sometimes body language speaks louder than words.

- 2 Decide whether each verb in its -ing form functions as a subject (S), object (O), predicative (P), or attribute (A).

- 1 Seeing is believing.
- 2 A man cannot be robbed of his learning.
- 3 Living without an aim is like sailing without a compass.
- 4 After staying in the sleeping bag the whole night, I really needed to stretch my legs.
- 5 You should have been more careful. She started coughing and sneezing yesterday.
- 6 One may agree that in a conversation, listening is as powerful as loving.
- 7 After a long day she looked forward to putting her feet up with a nice cup of tea.
- 8 Isabella really put her back into learning Chinese. She wants to start living in China in two or three months.
- 9 Fishing in troubled waters may cause even more problems.

REFLECTING

- ⊙ Which body language in this unit do you use most often? Does it have the same meaning as in the text?
- ⊙ What do you think you could do to communicate better with other people?
- ⊙ Do you think you will be able to tell more from reading others' body language from now on?
- ⊙ What problems did you or your friends have in studying this unit? How did you solve them? What advice did you give each other?
- ⊙ Overall, I thought this unit was interesting useful so-so difficult.

*Project: Make a body language information sheet

- 1 In groups, brainstorm a list of different kinds of body language. Use the information from this unit, your own experience and knowledge, and/or the website excerpt below.

Standing with one's hands on one's hips shows that a person is angry in many cultures, such as Malaysia, Argentina, and Mexico.

Many Mexicans like to touch people on the arm. This shows that they want to be friendly.

When communicating with someone from Tanzania or Kenya, do not use your left hand when giving or receiving things like a business card or gift.

In Vietnamese culture, the head is considered the most important part of the body. Only parents or an important person can touch your head.

If a Lebanese person stands close to you, do not feel that they are entering your personal space. Personal space is relatively smaller in Lebanon and many other places.

In Korean culture, one must be careful not to show too much emotion through facial expressions, except in very casual situations. Koreans may tend to distrust people who use exaggerated facial expressions, or may misunderstand what those facial expressions mean.

People of Puerto Rico move their noses to say, "What's going on here?"

- 2 Based on your list, research online to discover what the same kinds of body language mean in different cultures.
- 3 Each group should come up with its own body language information sheet like the example below. Drawings and/or photos can be added to show what the different forms of body language look like.

Body Language Information Sheet
Body language	Meaning
Moving the hand in circles over the stomach after a meal.	Almost everywhere: I'm full.
The "OK" sign.	Japan: money France: zero Brazil and Germany: not polite China: ...

- 4 Present your information sheet to the class, and then vote on the best one.

The Immigrant

- 2 Where does Chaplin get the money to eat at the restaurant?
- 3 Why does the waiter become angry with Chaplin?
- 4 Why does the man sitting next to Chaplin become angry with him?
- 5 Can Chaplin pay the restaurant bill in the end?

| Paragraph 1 | A Yuan conducted research and developed hybrid rice. |
| Paragraph 2 | B Yuan worked hard to fulfil his dreams. |
| Paragraph 3 | C Yuan considered himself a farmer. |
| Paragraph 4 | D Yuan decided to study agriculture. |
| Paragraph 5 | E Yuan's innovation has helped to feed more people. |
| Paragraph 6 | F Yuan cared little for fame or wealth. |

A PIONEER FOR ALL PEOPLE

Yuan Longping, known as the "father of hybrid rice", was one of China's most famous scientists. Yet, he considered himself a farmer because he continually worked the land in his research. Indeed, his slim but strong body was just like that of millions of Chinese farmers, to whom he had devoted his life.

Yuan Longping was born in 1930 in Beijing. His parents wanted him to pursue a career in science or medicine. However, what concerned him most was that farmers often had poor harvests and sometimes even had a serious shortage of food to eat. To tackle this crisis, he chose to study agriculture and received an education at Southwest Agricultural College in Chongqing.

After graduating in 1953, he worked as a researcher. Yuan Longping realised that larger fields were not the solution. Instead, farmers needed to boost yields in the fields they had. How this could be done was a challenging question at the time. Yuan was convinced that the answer could be found in the creation of hybrid rice. A hybrid is a cross between two or more varieties of a species. One characteristic of hybrids is that they usually attain a higher yield than conventional crops. However, whether it was possible to develop a hybrid of self-pollinating plants such as rice was a matter of great debate. The common assumption then was that it could not be done. Through intense effort, Yuan overcame enormous technical difficulties to develop the first hybrid rice that could be used for farming in 1974. This hybrid enabled farmers to expand their output greatly.

Today, it is estimated that about 60 percent of domestic rice consumption in China is comprised of crops generated from Yuan's hybrid strains, and his strains have allowed China's farmers to produce around 200 million tons of rice per year. Yuan's innovation has helped feed not just China, but many other countries that depend on rice as well, such as India and Vietnam. Because of his invaluable contributions, Yuan Longping received numerous awards both in China and abroad.

Given that Yuan's hybrids made him quite wealthy, one might think he would have retired to a life of leisure. However, this is far from the case. Deep down, Yuan was still very much a farmer at heart. As a man of the soil, he cared little for celebrity or money. Instead, he made large donations to support agricultural research.

What impressed people most about Yuan Longping was his ongoing ability to fulfil his dreams. Long ago, he envisioned rice plants as tall as sorghum, with each ear of rice as big as a broom, and each grain of rice as huge as a peanut. He succeeded in producing a kind of rice that could feed more people at home and abroad. His later vision for "seawater rice" also became a reality, and potentially opened up nearly one million square kilometres of salty land in China for rice production. Even in his later years, Yuan Longping was still young at heart and full of vision, and everyone was always excited to see what he would dream up next.

3 Read the text again and answer the questions.

- 1 Why did Yuan Longping consider himself a farmer?
- 2 Why did Yuan decide to study agriculture?
- 3 What is the main advantage of hybrid crops?
- 4 How has Yuan's work helped China and other countries?
- 5 What was Yuan's later vision?

4 Complete the sentences with the correct forms of the words in the box.

Use word formation to guess the meaning

Often, new words are not really "new" — they are just different forms of words that you may already know. For instance, a word ending with -ate is often a verb, while a word ending in -tion is often a noun. Thus, we have communicate (verb) and communication (noun). English has many word patterns like this.

- 1 This school has _____ thousands of bright young students over the years.

Evaluate chemical farming and organic farming

1 Read the text, and then answer the questions on page 56.

CHEMICAL VERSUS ORGANIC FARMING

Chemical pesticides and artificial fertilisers have been in widespread use in farming since the middle of the 20th century. When they were first introduced, many farmers welcomed them as a great way to fight crop disease and increase production. Over time, however, what some scientists have found is that their long-term use can sometimes harm both the land and people's health.

For example, pesticides can damage the land by killing not only harmful bacteria and insects, but also helpful ones. In addition, these chemicals can stay in the soil and underground water sources for a long time. This affects the crops grown on the land and, in turn, the animals and humans who digest them. Many people worry that these chemicals may make them ill and even cause cancer. In fact, some pesticides like DDT have been prohibited in most countries because of the damage they cause to people and the environment. As for chemical fertilisers, crops grown with them usually grow too fast to be rich in nutrition. They may look beautiful on the outside, but inside there is usually more water than essential minerals, and they often have less flavour as well.

As an alternative, some farmers have switched to organic farming, and many customers have turned to organic food when they shop at the local grocery. Organic farming is simply farming without using any chemicals. Organic farmers focus on keeping their soil rich and free of disease through natural means. For example, many organic farmers use natural waste from animals as fertiliser. This makes the soil in their fields richer in minerals. It also keeps the air, soil, water, and crops free of chemicals.

Organic farmers also use many other methods to produce rich soil. They often change the kind of crop grown in each field every year. For instance, they may grow corn or wheat in a field one year, and then grow beans there the next. Why different crops are grown is because they put important minerals back into the ground, making it ready for the next batch of crops. Organic farmers also plant diverse crops that use different depths of soil to help keep it rich. For example, peanuts grow on the ground's surface, but many other vegetables put down deep roots. The goal of using different organic farming methods is to grow good food while avoiding damage to the environment or to people's health.

Some people would prefer to stop the use of man-made chemicals in agriculture entirely. What keeps them from doing so is the fact that chemical farming serves the high demand for food around the world. Organic farming is nowhere near able to meet that need. Therefore, there is still a long way to find a suitable solution that puts sufficient food on the dinner table while keeping people and the environment as healthy as possible.

- 1 Why did many farmers welcome the introduction of chemical farming?
- 2 What concerns many people about the use of pesticides?
- 3 What is one problem with the use of chemical fertilisers?
- 4 How is organic farming different from chemical farming?
- 5 Why do organic farmers change the kind of crop grown in a field every year?
- 6 What is the goal of using organic farming methods? Do you think it can be reached? Why or why not?

2 Match the main ideas (A–D) below with the paragraphs. Then complete the sentences in the table.

- A What organic farming is B Why man-made chemicals are still used in farming
 C Organic methods for producing rich soil D The problems with chemical farming

HEROES IN YOUR EYES

Everyone knows the people who have helped to change the face of the world in recent years. From Bill Gates to Steve Jobs to Jack Ma, few would not recognise their names. However, those who work tirelessly behind the scenes often go unnoticed, in spite of their great achievements. If you know anyone who deserves to have their contributions recognised, we would love to hear from you! Let us know how these people have helped to make a difference in your eyes.

The person I respect most is the geophysicist Huang Danian, who helped China to make many technological advances.

Huang was a remarkable scientist. He had studied and worked in Britain for 18 years, but when he felt that his country needed him, he gave up his well-paid job and returned to China. Over the next seven years, Huang worked to develop many devices needed for deep-Earth exploration.

Unfortunately, such achievements didn't come cheap. Due to the frantic pace of his research, Huang was absent from his father's funeral, and even his own cancer went undetected as he had no time to see a doctor. To sum up, Huang sacrificed everything for his research, and I think more people should honour him.

(Zhang Keyu, Hubei)

I want to tell everyone about two teachers on Changyu Island, Wang Kaiquan and Lin Zhujin.

Few people know about this hometown of mine. The island is beautiful, but it's quite isolated, and there aren't many modern conveniences. In bad weather, even our water and power supplies are unstable. People who have never been to our island are often surprised by this and find it hard to adjust. Many who live on the island dream of leaving. These two primary school teachers, however, have stayed on for 23 long years! They are the only teachers here, and they plan to stay for as long as there are children who need to attend school.

I want to thank them, and let the world know about these teachers who work tirelessly every day for the sake of the children.

(Chen Xueyin, Fujian)

My mother, Liu Shurong, is my greatest inspiration. She is 47 years old and works as a cashier at a neighbourhood supermarket.

I used to think her job was pretty easy, but now that I am older, I realise that my mother deserves respect for doing an amazing job all these years. She works long hours every day for the sake of our family, and she still finds the time to help with household chores and spend time with me.

My mother takes pride in her work. She faces customers with a smile and works hard even when she is tired. Because of her, I have learnt to stay positive even when times are hard.

THREE DAYS TO SEE (Adapted)

Helen Keller

I have often thought it would be a blessing if each human being were stricken blind and deaf for a few days at some time during his early adult life. Darkness would make him more appreciative of sight; silence would teach him the joys of sound.

Now and then I have tested my seeing friends to discover what they see. Recently I asked a friend, who had just returned from a long walk in the woods, what she had observed. "Nothing in particular," she replied.

How was it possible, I asked myself, to walk for an hour through the woods and see nothing worthy of note? I who cannot see find hundreds of things to interest me through mere touch. I feel the delicate symmetry of a leaf. I pass my hands lovingly about the smooth skin of a silver birch, or the rough, shaggy bark of a pine. In spring I touch the branches of trees hopefully in search of a bud, the first sign of awakening Nature after her winter's sleep. Occasionally, if I am very fortunate, I place my hand gently on a small tree and feel the happy quiver of a bird in full song.

At times my heart cries out with longing to see all these things. If I can get so much pleasure from mere touch, how much more beauty must be revealed by sight. And I have imagined what I should most like to see if I were given the use of my eyes, say for just three days.

On the first day, I should want to see the people whose kindness and companionship have made my life worth living. I do not know what it is to see into the heart of a friend through that "window of the soul", the eye. I can only "see" through my fingertips the outline of a face. I can detect laughter, sorrow, and many other obvious emotions. I know my friends from the feel of their faces.

Character cannot be developed in ease and quiet. Only through experience of trial and suffering can the soul be strengthened, ambition inspired, and success achieved.

—Helen Keller

For instance, can you describe accurately the faces of five different friends? As an experiment, I have questioned husbands about the colour of their wives' eyes, and often they express embarrassed confusion and admit that they do not know.

I should like to see the books which have been read to me, and which have revealed to me the deepest channels of human life. In the afternoon I should take a long walk in the woods and intoxicate my eyes on the beauties of the world of Nature. And I should pray for the glory of a colourful sunset. That night, I should not be able to sleep.

On my second day, I should like to see the pageant of man's progress, and I should go to the museums. I should try to probe into the soul of man through his art. The things I knew through touch I should now see. The evening of my second day I should spend at a theatre or at the movies.

The following morning, I should again greet the dawn, anxious to discover new delights, new revelations of beauty. Today, this third day, I shall spend in the workaday world, amid the haunts of men going about the business of life.

At midnight permanent night would close on me again. Only when darkness had again descended upon me should I realise how much I had left unseen.

I am sure that if you faced the fate of blindness you would use your eyes as never before. Everything you saw would become dear to you. Your eyes would touch and embrace every object that came within your range of vision. Then, at least, you would really see, and a new world of beauty would open itself before you.

I who am blind can give one hint to those who see: Use your eyes as if tomorrow you would be stricken blind. And the same method can be applied to the other senses. Hear the music of voices, the song of a bird, the mighty strains of an orchestra, as if you would be stricken deaf tomorrow. Touch each object as if tomorrow your tactile sense would fail. Smell the perfume of flowers, taste with relish each morsel, as if tomorrow you could never smell and taste again. Make the most of every sense; glory in all the facets of pleasure and beauty, which the world reveals to you through the several means of contact which Nature provides. But of all the senses, I am sure that sight must be the most delightful.

CLONING: WHERE IS IT LEADING US?

When it was announced in 2018 that the Chinese Academy of Sciences in Shanghai had created the world's first cloned monkeys, Zhongzhong and Huahua, heated discussions followed online. In fact, cloning has always been with us. It is a way of making an exact copy of another animal or plant. It happens in plants when gardeners take cuttings from growing plants to make new ones. It also happens in animals when identical twins are produced from the same egg. These are both examples of natural clones.

Cloning has two major uses. First, gardeners use it to produce large quantities of plants for sale. Second, it is valuable for research on new plant species and for medical research on animals. Cloning plants is fairly straightforward, while cloning animals is much more complicated and difficult. Over the years, many scientists failed in their attempts to clone animals, but their determination and patience paid off in 1996 with a breakthrough—the cloning of Dolly the sheep.

The sheep cloning procedure works like this:

- Female sheep A provides an egg cell.
- The nucleus is removed from the egg cell.
- The egg cell is ready for a new nucleus.
- Female sheep B provides a somatic cell (体细胞) for the clone. The nucleus of this cell contains all the genes needed to produce a new sheep.
- The nucleus is taken out of the somatic cell.
- The somatic cell nucleus from sheep B and the egg cell from sheep A are joined.
- The cell divides and grows into an embryo.
- The embryo is put into female sheep C, who becomes the carrier of the clone.
- The lamb which is born is the clone of sheep B. It is in every way identical to sheep B, but younger.

With the advances of scientific research, cloning will have several major uses in the future. For one thing, it could be used to breed animal species which are endangered, or even bring back species which are now extinct. For another, it could be used to grow human organs or tissue in animals, which could be used for human organ transplants or medical treatments. Finally, cloning could be used to breed animals that will provide us with higher quality meat, milk, or eggs.

While there are technical issues that need to be worked through to make widespread cloning possible, the biggest concerns are moral. For example, if scientists brought an extinct animal back into existence, it would probably end up living in a zoo. That is not very good for the animal. Even worse for the animal is using it as a source of organ transplants—because it will be injured or even die. In addition, many people worry that eating animal products that result from cloning might be harmful to our health over time. The possibility of using cloning to produce human beings is an even bigger concern. What would happen if such knowledge ended up in the wrong hands?

When it comes to cloning, we wonder, ultimately, whether cloning will help or harm the world. No doubt, we will be talking about this question for a long time to come.

2 Answer the questions using information from the text.

- 1 What are the two examples of natural clones?
- 2 What are the two main uses for clones today?
- 3 What future medical uses does cloning have?
- 4 Why might cloning an extinct animal be a bad idea?
- 5 Why do many people worry about cloned food?

3 Match the topics with the paragraphs.

- | | |
|-------------|--|
| Paragraph 1 | A Possible uses of cloning in the future |
| Paragraph 2 | B Whether cloning is good or bad |
| Paragraph 3 | C Current uses of cloning |
| Paragraph 4 | D What cloning is |
| Paragraph 5 | E How cloning a sheep works |
| Paragraph 6 | F Moral and ethical concerns about cloning |

4 Discuss the following questions in groups.

- 1 What are the moral issues involved with cloning?
- 2 What does the author mean by “What would happen if such knowledge ended up in the wrong hands?”
- 3 What moral concerns—if any—do you have regarding cloning? How important are these issues to you? Why?

5 Imagine that you are a scientist and that you have the choice to clone or not to clone a particular animal species. Write a report about your choice.

OUR GREATEST ADVENTURE

In the 1960s and 1970s, some writers and university professors called themselves “futurists”. These futurists tried to predict the future. Only a few of their predictions were right, and all of them missed something that was just around the corner: the revolution in computers and information technology. The problem was that none of these futurists were scientists or engineers. So, while they knew the future would have more powerful computers, they had no clue what these computers would look like, what they could do, or what impact they would have on our lives.

This should make us hesitate before we try to predict the future. Having said that, we can make some good guesses about future technology by looking at current scientific and technological advances. We can also ask the real experts: the scientists and engineers who are bringing us these advances.

According to experts, in the future computers will be so common that we may no longer even notice them. Forget smartphones and smart watches—we will have smart clothes that adjust to the weather and our body temperature, and change size to fit our body shape. We will also have smart contact lenses. Using these smart contact lenses, we can access the information and power of computers in a way that far exceeds anything currently possible.

Because so much of our daily life will be integrated with computers, virtual reality will become an actual, real reality for many of us. Technology will not just allow us to see a world that is thousands of kilometres away—which only exists in a computer—but will also allow us to touch and smell that world. This virtual world will at times seem as real as—if not more real than—the actual world around us. Without leaving home, you will be able to take tours of foreign countries, or even get a medical exam by a doctor in another city.

Speaking of medicine, through new technology, people who have brain or spinal injuries will be able to find new hope. There is already, for example, technology which will allow blind people to see using cameras and deaf people to hear using microphones that are connected to their brains. Future technology will allow people to overcome all sorts of physical disabilities.

Much research is being done to unlock the human mind. Using technology that is being developed now, people in the future may be able to not just read someone else's mind, but also record their thoughts like one would record a movie. Some other research involves using robotic technology to replace human functions. For example, robot hands are being developed for people who have no hands. These artificial hands are connected to a person's nerves so that the person's brain tells the hands what to do. In the future they will work just as well as real human hands. Indeed, they may even be better. Not only can they be made stronger and faster than human hands, but also sturdier so they will not break or get injured as easily.

As a result of such advances, in the future, some people who are badly injured may become more robot than human. That is, their brains will control their robotic body parts so they can live their lives fully without being handicapped. Many new parts will be made to replace human body parts that break down, meaning it may be possible to use this technology to extend our lives long past the time of normal death by old age.

These are just a few of the things that are already being explored in science and technology. There will also be advances in transportation and space travel. Of course, there is a lot that we still do not know about the future. Science and technology may provide a road map for the future, but they cannot tell us what we will find along the way. But if we knew everything about the future, then where would the mystery and excitement be? We should all eagerly view the future as a great adventure—a new world waiting to be explored. Who knows exactly what we will find?

1 Skim this email and find the reason why Chris went to Shangri-La.

Dear Sis,

How have you been? I'm having a good time on my holiday. Do you remember how it was our dream to find Shangri-La some day? You know that place in James Hilton's Lost Horizon. Well, now I can safely say that I've been there!

Before you get too excited, I must admit that this Shangri-La is the name of a city in Yunnan, China, and not the place in the book! I decided to come here because I wanted to experience the real Shangri-La for myself, even if it's different from the paradise we read about. So far, I really like it here.

On Monday, I left Lhasa at noon, and after changing flights once, I reached Shangri-La—also called “Zhongdian”—at eight in the evening. The airport is not far from the city, so my taxi ride to the hotel was very short. That night, I was so exhausted that I had a quick bite to eat and then crashed.

Yesterday, I went to the Potatso National Park. The park covers such a wide area that the admission ticket for the park includes a bus tour, as it is the only way to see all the major sites in one day. Just to give you an idea of how large the place is, imagine a park that spans across vast forests, wetlands, lakes, meadows, and several villages! On the bus, I made friends with the passengers around me, and they said that I had definitely picked the right season to visit the park. The autumn scenery, they said, would be absolutely picture-perfect.

On top of its beautiful scenery, the park is also famous for its rich biological diversity. Did you know that Potatso makes up less than one percent of China's total land area, but it contains more than 20 percent of the country's plant and animal species? The black-necked cranes were my favourites. I saw two of them at the picturesque Bita Lake!

At Shudu Lake, the first stop on the bus tour, we saw horses, cows, and yaks enjoying the sunlight and eating grass contentedly. As a nature lover like me, I'm sure you can imagine how delighted I was by this sight.

Bita Lake, however, is absolutely my favourite place in Potatso. Just imagine, a beautiful lake, blue skies, majestic mountains, and golden trees all around me. In such tranquil surroundings, I could easily believe myself to be standing in James Hilton's Shangri-La. For those who live in cities like we do, spending time in nature can be an incredibly rejuvenating experience.

Tomorrow, I am going hiking at the Tiger Leaping Gorge. Fingers crossed that there will be good weather! Anyway, I need to get some sleep now since tomorrow's going to be a long day, but I'll tell you all about it when I get back!

Love,
Chris

NATIONAL PARKS—A TREASURE HOUSE FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

While city life may be exciting, all of us need to escape into nature now and again. Some of the best family holidays involve things like picnics, camping, hikes, and forest walks. Exploring nature allows us to catch sight of rare animals and come across special places of beauty. Of course, none of this would be possible without protected nature areas. This is why national parks are so important. They are places to be treasured—places where the country locks away the very best it has to offer for everyone to enjoy. To protect this heritage, governments allow very little development inside most national parks. A few national parks allow things like hotels and recreation areas to be constructed within them, but most parks do not allow any development at all. Visitors have to bring in their own food and drink, and then be sure to carry out all their waste when they leave.

The very first national park is also one of the most famous in the world—Yellowstone, in the western USA. Nineteenth-century explorers were amazed by what they saw in Yellowstone. Apart from the beautiful mountains, rushing rivers, and tall waterfalls, there were geysers, which sent boiling water as high as 91 metres into the air. Then there were the hot springs, as colourful as rainbows. These explorers wanted to protect the natural features of the area from development so that future generations could enjoy the area. And so, in 1872, Yellowstone was established as a national park. Today, around four million people a year visit it. Many come hoping to see wildlife, which is no longer as common in the American West as it once was. Everyone comes to see the geysers, especially Old Faithful, which sits near the centre of the park, and sends 95.6°C water up to 56 metres into the air every 44 to 125 minutes.

While Yellowstone was made a national park in order to protect its natural features, many others were set up to protect wildlife. A good example is the Serengeti National Park in Tanzania. In the local African language, “Serengeti” means “the place where the land runs on forever”. It is a wide plain covered in tall grass, and dotted with trees. When foreigners began killing the Serengeti lions for sport, the government decided to take action, eventually turning the area into a national park in 1951. Even then, it was a challenge to protect the park’s wildlife. In 1959, a film was made of the great wildebeest migration which occurs every year in the park. This film, Serengeti Shall Not Die, helped people around the world understand the need for wildlife protection. Today, the Serengeti is one of the top tourist attractions in the world. Nowhere else can you see such great herds of wildebeests and zebras, in addition to lions, rhinoceroses, elephants, and many other rare creatures.

Not all famous national parks are on land. Some national parks are marine parks. One good example of this is the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park in Australia. Stretching over 2,300 kilometres, the Great Barrier Reef is considered one of the natural wonders of the world. It is the largest structure in the world made by living creatures. A wide variety of tropical wildlife also makes the reef its home. Since the Great Barrier Reef is just below the surface of the water, it is an excellent place to see nature, and millions of people travel there every year. The park was created in 1975 to protect the reef from overdevelopment and fishing. Unfortunately, the biggest danger to the Great Barrier Reef is something park management cannot stop—global warming. Rising ocean temperatures are causing some coral to die and the colourful reefs to turn grey. Hundreds of years ago, people could not imagine that there would ever be a time when forests would be cut down, oceans would become polluted, and wildlife would face extinction.

Facing the problems of environment pollution and overdevelopment, some national parks have been set aside to protect both natural features and wildlife. A good example of this is the Sanjiangyuan National Park, which was set up in the south of China's Qinghai Province in 2000. The park is at a very high altitude and contains the source of the Yangtze River (Changjiang), Lancang River, and Yellow River. It is also home to many species of plants and birds, along with animals like Tibetan antelopes, snow leopards, wolves, foxes, bears, yaks, and sheep. In most areas of the reserve, development is strictly forbidden, and any permitted development is closely monitored.

The protection of natural areas has attracted much media attention, and now more and more people are supporting the idea of eco-friendly development. Today, people understand that national parks are not just for one generation; they should be protected for every generation to come.

EXAMPLE

Animals often use body language to show their emotions. For example, when it wants to show fear and tell you to stay away, a bear will slap the ground. This is very different from a dog, which will put its tail between its legs to show fear ...

Reading and Writing

ANIMAL BODY LANGUAGE

Human beings are not the only ones who communicate. Animals use body language to tell each other how they feel and what they think. Here is a quick look at how some of our animal friends send messages to us and to each other.

Dogs use sounds, body movements, and their tails to communicate. When a dog is happy, its ears will stand up and its eyes will be wide open. The dog will start barking, moving its tail, and running around in circles or jumping up and down to show you that it wants to play. A dog that is afraid will lie on its back and close its eyes. The dog may show its teeth and lower its body so that it is close to the ground. The dog may also shake, and it will put its tail between its legs. When a dog is angry, its main body language is showing its teeth and growling. The dog will try making itself look as big as possible. The tail will stand straight out from the body.

Elephants also use noises and body language to express themselves. An elephant's sense of smell is highly developed. An elephant can smell how another elephant is feeling and even tell if it is sick. The elephant's nose, or trunk, is also used to make noises and to welcome other elephants. Different noises have a variety of meanings: they can mean "I am hungry", "I am angry", or "Good to see you!" An elephant's body language includes ear signals and gestures. If an elephant spreads its ears, it means "Watch out!" To show friendship, elephants will touch each other with their trunks and stand close to each other, putting their heads together.

Dolphins are social animals. They live in groups and love showing each other their feelings. An angry dolphin will sometimes hit its tail on the surface of the water. The movement and noise let other dolphins know that something is wrong. If a dolphin wants to send a message over a long distance, or if it wants to show how strong it is, it will jump high out of the water and land on its side, making a loud noise. A dolphin's favourite activity is leaping into the air while playing with its friends. When dolphins are tired and need to rest, they will swim in small groups close to the surface. If you see dolphins doing this, you should not disturb them.

BEING FUNNY WITHOUT SAYING A WORD

Victor Hugo once said, “Laughter is the sun that drives winter from the human face.” Up to now, nobody has been able to create laughter like Charlie Chaplin. He brightened the lives of millions through two world wars and the hard years in between. He made people laugh at a time when they felt depressed, so they could forget their difficulties.

Not that Charlie’s own life was easy. He was born to a poor family in 1889. His parents were both poor music hall performers. To make money, Charlie learnt to sing as soon as he could speak, and dance as soon as he could walk. Such training was common in stage families at that time. Every member of the family performed to help make money. Then his father died, and so Charlie spent his youth looking after his sick mother and his brother. By his teens, Charlie had, through his humour, become one of the most popular child actors in England. No one was bored watching him—he made everything funny.

As time went by, Chaplin began making silent films, where the story was told only through body language and gestures. Usually, Chaplin appeared in these films as the Little Tramp, a poor man with a moustache, large trousers, worn-out shoes, and a small, round hat. He walked around stiffly, carrying a walking stick. Even though the Little Tramp was considered a failure in life, he was still full of kindness and hope. Like Chaplin, the Little Tramp always tried to turn his sadness into joy. Chaplin once said, “My pain may be the reason for somebody’s laugh. But my laugh must never be the reason for somebody’s pain.” He also said, “To truly laugh, you must be able to take your pain, and play with it!”

In 1914 and 1915, Chaplin worked almost constantly, making nearly 50 short films. Though short films were in high demand, Chaplin's popularity allowed him to take more time and make longer films. One of these films, The Kid (1921), is considered to be among the greatest films ever made. In the film, the Little Tramp finds a baby that has been abandoned, and raises the child as his own. While the film has many funny moments, it also has times of great sadness. As Chaplin said, it was "a picture with a smile, and perhaps a tear".

How did the Little Tramp make a sad situation funny? Here is an example from one of his most famous films, The Gold Rush (1925). It is around 1900, and gold has just been discovered in Alaska. The Little Tramp has rushed there in search of gold, but without success. Instead, he is hiding in a small house on a mountain during a snowstorm, with nothing to eat. He is so hungry that he has cooked one of his boots for dinner.

The Little Tramp first cuts off the laces and eats them as if they were noodles. Then he cuts up the boot and shares it with Big Jim, another fortune-hunter. The Little Tramp chews on the lower part of the boot, treating it like something good to eat and making you believe that this is one of the best meals he has ever tasted.

When the silent era ended in 1929, Chaplin continued to make films, but these films had little or no dialogue. They had just music and sound effects. Unfortunately, his style of visual humour had gone out of style and so his films were not as successful as before. Finally, in 1940, Chaplin gave up silent films to make The Great Dictator. This became Chaplin's most successful movie. It was also his last great success. Essentially, Chaplin went into retirement afterwards, though he made a handful of films later on.

Charlie Chaplin wrote, directed, and produced the films he starred in. In 1972, he was given a special Academy Award, which became known as an Oscar in later years, for his contributions to the film industry. He lived in England and the USA, but spent his last years in Switzerland, where he died in 1977. He is loved and remembered as a great actor who inspired people during dark times.

BETTER, GREENER LIVES AWAY FROM THE CITY

While the dream of most university graduates is to start a successful career in a big city, more and more young people are choosing to stay in their own hometowns so they can stay with their family and friends. For some young people, it is also a matter of making the quality of life for other people in their hometowns better. They also have a desire to improve and maintain the natural and economic environments in these places for generations to come.

Li Dan is a woman who has discovered that returning home to work in the field of agriculture could offer her both a meaningful challenge and a good standard of living. Born in a small village in Southwest China, she decided not to follow many of her former classmates to the city after getting her degree at university. Instead, she returned to her village and started her own fruit-growing business. Working hard over the last several years, and taking advantage of new technology and the Internet, she has expanded her business to include agritourism. Moreover, her company's annual income has reached six million yuan and more than 50 new jobs have been created. As a result, her decision has also helped to alleviate poverty and improve the lives of many people in her village.

With China's population expected to continue rising in the coming years, the government understands the importance of agriculture. It also understands that university graduates can help come up with better ways to grow crops, and develop new, creative ways of farming using modern technology. To help these young people with their bright and innovative ideas, the government is providing financial help. Business development loans are becoming easier for these young people to obtain, too. Government policies that aim to eliminate poverty are also having a beneficial effect.

"Life in big cities is not all it's cracked up to be," said Zhang Tao, from Binchuan county in Yunnan Province, adding that the air was bad, transport was terrible, and it was hard to make a decent living. What life in one's hometown offers is a strong support network. More importantly, this network is also a good one for getting new agribusinesses up and running quite quickly. Thus, it is no surprise that more new graduates are now attracted to life in the country, where they can fulfil personal goals and contribute to their local communities rather than just being white-collar professionals in big cities.

- 1 What do some young people hope to achieve by living in their hometowns?
- 2 How has Li Dan's decision to work in her hometown contributed to her community?
- 3 Why does the government support people who want to stay and work in their hometowns?
- 4 Based on the context, what do you think the sentence "Life in big cities is not all it's cracked up to be" means?
- 5 What is meant by "a strong support network"?

3 Discuss the following questions in groups.

- 1 Which would you prefer: living in a big city or living in the country? Why?
- 2 How can you best contribute to your hometown?

4 Make a list of three advantages and three disadvantages of working in the city and working in the country. Write your notes in the table below.

Choice	Advantage	Disadvantage
Working in the city	1	1
	2	2
	3	3
Working in the country	1	1
	2	2
	3	3

5 Use the table above to decide which choice you prefer. For each advantage, add one detail. For the disadvantages, add a reason why they do not matter a lot to you. Use the outline below to help you write an essay.

In my opinion, working in the city/country is better.

First, (Advantage 1) _____
 (Detail) _____

Second, (Advantage 2) _____
 (Detail) _____

Finally, (Advantage 3) _____
 (Detail) _____

Of course, there are some disadvantages to working in the city/country.
 For example, (disadvantage) _____
 In addition, (disadvantage) _____
 However, (reasons they do not bother you) _____

All in all, I would prefer to work in the city/country.

AMAZING METHODS OF AGRICULTURE

Agriculture has come a long way from its ancient beginnings. Long ago, farmers would work hard on their individual plots of land, using simple tools or even their bare hands. They tended to their crops for many hours each day so that the crops grew well and did not suffer from pests or disease. Luck played a great part in farming. For example, a single storm could destroy a whole year's work, while a summer of good weather could ensure a good harvest. Where farms were located was often critical to success, too. In hilly countries, some lucky farmers would have land in the lowlands—full of deep, rich soil, while other unlucky farmers would have land on the hills with hard soil full of stones. In addition, some areas would simply be too dry or too wet to grow much of value.

Modern science and technology have helped to greatly reduce the back-breaking labour involved in farming, along with the reliance on luck and guesswork. These advances have enabled people in various countries to benefit from exceptional innovations in crop production.

Probably one of the most beneficial innovations is drip irrigation, which has made it possible to develop big, green farms in the middle of the desert. While there have been experiments in different places in the past to make drip irrigation a reality, it is in the Middle Eastern country of Israel that drip irrigation has become a modern success.

How Simcha Blass, a scientist, discovered this new way of irrigation is rather interesting. He was visiting a friend in the Israeli desert in the 1930s when he noticed something unusual. There was a row of trees near his friend's house, and one of them was much taller than the others. When Blass dug around the roots to find out what the secret was, he discovered that the house's water pipe had a small leak at the base of the tree. The pipe's steady drip onto the tree's roots was giving it just enough water at the perfect rate to grow strong and quickly.

Through this discovery, farmers can now produce crops on arid land without needing much water. This irrigation method uses far less water than other methods. The limited and focused use of just the right amount of water also denies moisture to weeds and pests, keeping them from harming the crops.

Drip irrigation deals with a lack of water in an area. However, what if an area has plenty of water, but little usable soil? As it turns out, it is possible to grow plants without using soil at all. With hydroponics, plant roots are supported by rocks, glass beads, or a fibre mat. Nutrient-rich water is then provided so that the plants can grow. Given that China has many areas where soil conditions are poor, Chinese researchers have been experimenting with hydroponics since the 1970s. Recent research has centred on vertical hydroponics farming. With a vertical farm, the crops are planted in trays that are stacked into plant skyscrapers. Furthermore, nearly all hydroponic farms and vertical farms are either partially or fully automated.

Besides drip irrigation and hydroponics, scientists have made impressive innovations in agricultural machinery. Of course, the most important and useful agricultural machines, such as tractors and harvesters, were invented long ago. However, many such machines are now self-driving. They use cameras and a positioning system to see where they are and where they are going, and their routes can be planned by a computer. Depending upon the crop, some farms hundreds or thousands of hectares in size can be managed by just a handful of workers using machines such as these. For fruit cultivation, robots are now being employed in some countries. For instance, in Japan, robots are used to spray individual grape clusters with insecticide, trim them so they are all of equal size, bag them so that they can be further protected from pests and the elements, and then harvest them when they are ripe. In other countries, robots are being used to harvest oranges and strawberries, plant rice, and spray pesticides. The field of agricultural robotics is still in its infancy, so there is still a need for human labour to harvest many crops. To help ease this burden, there are also robots that can help workers carry fruit and vegetables to storage areas.

With such technological advances, the image of a farmer pushing a plough will eventually become a thing of the past. Farmers of the future are more likely to be technicians working in control rooms, surrounded by computers and monitors. Indeed, some farmers already are.

萨勒克国家公园, 位于瑞典北部, 设立于1909—1910年, 是欧洲最古老的国家公园之一, 也是萨米人生活的家园。萨勒克国家公园地貌丰富, 包括冰川、河流、峡谷、山峰等。公园内野生动物有狗熊、狼獾、驼鹿、猞猁等, 野生植物在高山地区以地衣苔藓和灌木为主, 著名景观包括拉帕山谷(Rapa Valley)。萨勒克国家公园风景壮美奇绝, 吸引了世界各地的众多登山爱好者和徒步爱好者。

- 3 Following the reindeer were the Sami people, who made this territory their home. 在驯鹿之后来的是萨米人, 他们在这片土地上安家落户。

驯鹿 reindeer 的复数形式可以是 reindeer 或 reindeers。这种鹿生活在北极圈附近, 成年雄性和雌性头部都能长出像树枝一样的巨大鹿角。

萨米人 the Sami, 也作 the Saami。他们是生活在斯堪的纳维亚北部地区的游牧民族, 是北欧原住民, 以放牧驯鹿为生。

Following the reindeer were the Sami people 是主谓倒装, 主语 the Sami people 后置, 以便与后面的定语从句更好地衔接, 语义上也更连贯。同样的信息用常规的语句表达就成了“People were following the reindeer. They were the Sami people and they made this territory their home.”, 但这会显得句式单调, 语言平淡。

【思考】 你知道的倒装句还有哪些? 请再写出两个倒装句。

- 4 If today is anything like yesterday, it will be full of sweat and hard work as I hike over this difficult land to my destination on the other side of the valley. 如果今天和昨天差不多, 那将会充满汗水和艰辛, 因为我要徒步跨越这片地形艰险的土地, 到达山谷另一端的目的地。 anything like 后面可以接人或物: anything like somebody/something, 意思是“与……相像; 多少有点像”。如:

He isn't anything like his twin sister. He is very outgoing and talkative. 他和他双胞胎姐姐(或妹妹)可不太像。他特别外向而且健谈。

Is this teapot anything like what your grandpa needs? 这个茶壶多少还符合你祖父的需要吧?

5 Theme Park 主题公园

主题公园和一般娱乐公园的不同之处在于, 它提供的各种活动都和主题互相关联。主题公园的主题包罗万象, 例如星际旅行、历史传奇、民俗文化等。主题公园一般只需要购买一次性门票, 便可畅玩园中各种设施。主题公园内有多种游乐设施和娱乐活动, 例如: 过山车、摩天轮、花车游行、节目表演等。

迪士尼乐园(Disneyland), 也叫作迪士尼主题公园。迪士尼乐园是世界上最早开业的主题公园。第一个迪士尼乐园于1955年在美国加利福尼亚州阿纳海姆开放营业, 之后在美国奥兰多、法国巴黎、日本东京、中国香港等地陆续建成和开放迪士尼乐园, 2016年开放的迪士尼乐园位于中国上海。

多莉山主题公园(Dollywood), 位于美国田纳西州大烟山, 是展现美国东南部传统文化的主题公园。园内有与伐木相关的游乐设施和娱乐项目, 常年举办乡村音乐表演和传统工艺展示, 非常适合对美国传统文化感兴趣的游客。该公园还拥有独特的木结构过山车。

长隆海洋王国(Chimelong Ocean Kingdom), 位于中国珠海, 2014年开放, 是亚洲最大的以海洋为主题的超大型主题乐园。公园占地上万平方千米, 有八大园区。园内有不同的珍稀海洋动物和极地动物展馆, 还有各种现代化游乐设施和表演, 自开园之日起, 就吸引了众多中外游客。该乐园的海洋鱼类展馆还创下了最大水族馆、最大水族箱、最大亚克力板、最大水底观景窗、最大水底观景穹顶等五个吉尼斯世界纪录。

6 Whichever and whatever you like, there is an incredible theme park that will appeal to you! 无论你喜欢哪一个, 无论你喜欢什么, 总会有一个奇妙无比的主题公园让你流连忘返!

whichever是由“which + ever”构成的复合词, 意思是“任何一个; 无论哪个; 无论哪些”。如:
You can use whichever colour you like. 你可以用任何一种颜色。

Whichever route you take, it takes almost the same amount of time. 不管你走哪一条路, 花的时间都差不多。 【思考】英语中“wh-疑问词 + ever”构成的复合词还有whatever、whenever、wherever、whoever等。你能说出这些词的意思, 并分别造句吗?

appeal to 在句子中意为“吸引; 对……有感染力”。appeal to还可以用来表示“呼吁; 要求; 诉诸; 求助于”的意思。如:

The idea of teaching Chinese abroad really appeals to me. 去国外教汉语这个想法特别吸引我。

The mayor went on TV to appeal to the public to stay calm. 市长在电视上呼吁公众保持冷静。

In order to solve the desertification problem, the farmers appealed to scientists for help. 为了解决土地沙化的问题, 农民们向科学家求助。

Unit 4

1 In other countries, by contrast, eye contact is not always approved of. 相反, 在另一些国家, 眼神交流并不总是被认可。

这个句子的着眼点在行为, 而非行为的实施者, 所以使用被动语态。同时, 被动语态的使用还表现出行文的客观和正式, 这也是被动语态的一种重要的语用功能。如:

It is usually considered rude to talk at the dinner table with your mouth full. 在餐桌上, 满嘴食物与人交谈通常会被视为无礼的表现。

2 In France, a person encountering an identical gesture may interpret it as meaning zero. 在法国，看到同一个手势的人可能会将其解读为“零”。

句中的两个 -ing 短语功能不同。第一个 -ing 短语 encountering the identical gesture 作定语，修饰名词 person。-ing 短语作定语时通常后置，而单个的 -ing 用作定语则大多前置。如： children playing soccer on the playground 操场上踢球的孩子

flowing water 流水

另外一个 -ing 短语 meaning zero 作介词 as 的宾语。如：

Without providing the required personal information, you'd be considered as having given up on the test. 若未完整填写所要求的个人信息，你将被视为弃考。

3 Many students are quite shy and don't speak all that much. 许多学生生性腼腆，沉默寡言。

“not (all) that + 形容词或副词”是一种较为口语化的表达方式，意为“不那么……；并不多么……”，all 有加强语气的作用。表达时如果再加上肢体语言，这一结构就会具有更强的描述性和画面感。如：

The car is not (all) that easy to drive. 这辆车并不那么好开。

The project wasn't (all) that successful. 这个项目并非那么成功。

4 So, how can I really know what makes each student tick? 那么，我是如何搞清楚每个学生为何会这样的呢？

what makes somebody tick 表示“形成某人性格（影响某人行为）的思想（情感、见解）；使某人这样做的原因”，翻译时要酌情考虑措辞。如：

I've never really understood what makes her tick. 我一直没搞清楚她为何会是这样一个人。

People are curious to know what makes firefighters tick. 人们很好奇，想知道那些消防员们工作的动力所在。

5 Their eyes barely move, and they always have the same distant expression on their faces. It is as though they are asleep with their eyes open. 他们的眼睛几乎不动，脸上表情疏远呆滞，好像睁着眼睛在睡觉。

在 It's as though ... 这句话中，it 指代前一句描述的行为表现（眼睛几乎不动，表情疏远呆滞）。连词 as though 相当于 as if，意为“就像；好比”。作者认为那些“眼睛几乎不动，表情疏远呆滞”的学生就是“睁着眼睛在睡觉”。如：

It seems as though/if everyone else has finished their homework. 好像其他人都已经把作业做完了。（事实就是自己落后了）

【思考】请把下面句子译成汉语，并说明说话者的含义。

It looks as though it's going to rain.

All of a sudden, Jack jumped as though he had been struck by lightning.

6 While it is easy to perceive when students are interested, bored, or distracted, it is sometimes much harder to distinguish when students are troubled. 尽管学生们何时（对讲课）感兴趣、何时感到无聊或精力不集中是容易察觉的，但要发现学生何时会有困扰有时会难得多。

句中连词 while 表示让步关系，意为“虽然；尽管”，相当于 though、although。如：

While I like Ronald personally, I do not approve of what he has done this time. 尽管我自己喜欢罗纳德，但我并不支持他这次所做的事。

7 However, if a student does not bother to brush her hair and her eyes are red from weeping, then I can infer that there are deeper issues at work. 但是，要是学生都懒得梳

头，并且两眼因哭泣而发红，那么我能够推断她遇到了更严重的问题。

bother在句中意为“费心；因……操心”等。这种用法常见于否定句和疑问句，形成(not) bother to do或doing结构。如：

Gwen jutted her chin forward, nose in the air, and did not bother to answer the teacher. 格温把下巴翘得老高，鼻子朝天，不屑回答老师的提问。

He didn't bother to complain about the matter. 他都懒得就这件事抱怨。

at work这一短语的基本意思是“在上班；在工作”，但是在课文这个句子中，表示“起着某一特定影响或作用”。如：

You can't find my parents at home now. They're at work. 你现在在家找不着我爸妈的，因为他们上班去了。

With your antivirus software at work, your computer is well protected. 有杀毒软件发挥作用，你的电脑受到了很好的保护。

Unit 5

1 Indeed, his slim but strong body was just like that of millions of Chinese farmers, to whom he had devoted his life. 确实，他瘦削但结实的身躯看起来和他为之奉献了一生的千千万万的中国农民一样。 devote ... to 是个动词短语，表示“把（时间、精力或注意力）投入，用于”，也可以搭配反身代词 devote oneself to, 表示“致力于；专心于”，注意这里to用作介词。如：

She decided to quit her job and devote more time to painting. 她决定辞掉工作，把更多的时间用在画画上。

They devoted themselves to helping these homeless people. 他们全身心地帮助这些无家可归的人。

2 Yuan Longping realised that larger fields were not the solution. Instead, farmers needed to boost yields in the fields they had. 袁隆平意识到，解决问题的办法并不是扩大农田面积，而是农民们需要提高他们已有土地上农作物的产量。

yield在句中作名词，表示“产量；收益”。如：

high yield 高产 low yield 低产

It will bring you a 6% yield on your investment. 它会给你的投资带来6%的利润。

yield还可以作动词，除了表示“生产；产出”之外，还可以表示“屈服；放弃”之意。如：

The fruit trees in his orchards yield a large amount of apples and pears every year. 他果园的果树每年产出大量的苹果和梨。

These experiments yielded important data for the research. 这些实验为研究提供了重要的数据。

We shall never yield to the difficulties. 我们绝不会向困难低头。

【思考】你知道a yield sign里的yield是什么意思吗？

3 Today, it is estimated that about 60 percent of domestic rice consumption in China is comprised of crops generated from Yuan's hybrid strains, and his strains have allowed China's farmers to produce around 200 million tons of rice per year. 据估算，现在中国国内消费的稻米有大约60%来自袁隆平的杂交水稻品种形成的作物，这些品种（形成的作物）让中国农民每年能够生产出大约两亿吨稻米。

这个句子的真正主语是从句that about 60 ... per year。因为真正的主语太长，为了避免句子头重脚轻，所以用形式主语it。英语中还有许多类似It is estimated that ... 这样的结构，用来将真正主语后置。如：

It is said/believed/reported that ...

domestic在句中作形容词，表示“国内的”。如：

domestic flights 国内航班 domestic policy 国内政策 GDP (gross domestic product) 国内生产总值 domestic 作形容词还可以表示“家庭的；家务事的”。如：
 domestic violence 家庭暴力

4 Given that Yuan's hybrids made him quite wealthy, one might think he would have retired to a life of leisure. However, this is far from the case. 考虑到杂交水稻使袁隆平变得相当富有，人们可能认为他会退休享受闲适的生活。然而，事实远非如此。

given that 在句中作连词，意思是“考虑到”。如：

Given that the students need more exercise, the head teacher has decided to add more PE classes. 考虑到学生们需要更多的锻炼，校长已决定增加更多体育课。

given 可用作介词，表示“只要是；考虑到；假定；已知”等意思。如：

Given his age, he is very strong and healthy. 考虑到他的年龄，他可以说是非常健康强壮了。 far from the case 表示“远非如此”，也可以说 far from being the case。其中，case 表示“情况；情形”。

far from 表示“远远不；绝非”。如：

His work is far from (being) satisfactory. 他的工作一点也不令人满意。

【思考】 give 和 case 在词典里有很多义项，你能查阅词典和相关资料，了解它们的其他词义和常用搭配吗？

5 Deep down, Yuan was still very much a farmer at heart. 实际上，袁隆平在内心深处仍然是一位农民。 deep down 表示“实际上；在心底”的意思。如：

He tried to behave as an adult, but deep down he was still a child. 他试图表现得像一个大人，但是内心深处他还是一个孩子。

very much 副词短语，表示“非常；确实是”。在文中表示程度，起强调作用，可以不用翻译出来。如：
 Kindness is very much a part of her character. 善良是她性格中一个重要部分。

Learning English is very much a step-by-step process. 学习英语在很大程度上是一个循序渐进的过程。

A: Are you serious? 你是认真的吗？

B: Very much so. 再认真不过了。

6 Organic farming is nowhere near able to meet that need. 有机耕作完全不能满足那样的需求。 nowhere near 在句中是“完全没有；远不及”的意思。如：

He is nowhere near full recovery. 他远没有完全康复。

This project has been going on for years, and is still nowhere near being finished. 这个项目已经开始了数年，但何时结束依然遥遥无期。

nowhere 作名词是“无处；任何地方；无名之地”的意思，例如表达身处偏僻荒凉的地方，可以说 in the middle of nowhere。如：

She came out of nowhere. 她突然出现。

nowhere 作副词是“无处；任何地方都不”的意思。如：

He is going nowhere. 他哪儿也不去。

Grammar 语法

I Non-Restrictive Relative Clauses 非限制性定语从句

- 1 定语从句可以分为限制性定语从句和非限制性定语从句。非限制性定语从句由关系代词和关系副词引导，但不能用 that 引导。如：

Tu Youyou was awarded the Nobel Prize, which is considered one of the highest international honours a person can receive. 屠呦呦获得了诺贝尔奖，这个奖项被认为是个人能获得最高国际荣誉之一。

Later, the medicine was tested on malaria patients, most of whom recovered. 后来，这种药用在疟疾病人身上，大部分病人都痊愈了。

I'm above the Arctic Circle, where in summer the sun never sets. 我在北极圈以内，这里的夏季永远没有日落。

- 2 限制性定语从句与其所修饰的先行词关系紧密；非限制性定语从句和主句的关系并不十分密切。限制性定语从句在意义上是先行词不可缺少的定语，如果省略，主句意义往往不完整，这种定语从句前面一般不用逗号。非限制性定语从句往往是对先行词或整个主句的附加说明，它与主句之间通常用逗号隔开。试比较：

Davis wanted to visit the farm where the seawater rice was grown. 戴维斯想参观种植海水稻的农场。（所含的限制性定语从句不能省略，否则句子的意义就不完整）

Davis wanted to visit Dr Yuan's new farm, where the seawater rice was grown. 戴维斯想参观袁博士的新农场，那里种了海水稻。（所含的非限制性定语从句是对农场的附加说明，可以省略）

- 3 非限制性定语从句也可以位于句中，这时前后都需要用逗号隔开。如：

Tu Youyou went to Hainan, where malaria was more common, to study malaria patients. 屠呦呦去海南研究疟疾病人的情况，那里是疟疾病更为普遍的地方。

Einstein, who was Jewish, found the doors of academic institutions closed to him. 作为一名犹太人，爱因斯坦发现学术机构的大门已对他关闭。

Disneyland, which consists of several theme areas, is a popular tourist destination. 迪士尼乐园包含好几个主题园区，是颇受欢迎的旅游目的地。

- 4 除了用于对具体事物补充信息，非限制性定语从句还可以是针对整个句子内容的说明。如：

Ms Liu decided that we could have a class trip to the park this Sunday, which was exciting. 刘老师决定我们班本周日可以去公园郊游，这真让人激动。

Laura couldn't come to our party, which was a pity. 劳拉不能来参加我们的聚会，这真遗憾。

II Tenses 时态 (3)

将来进行时 (The Future Progressive Tense)

- 1 将来进行时的形式

陈述式	一般疑问式
I/We will/shall (not) be doing ...	Will/Shall I/we (not) be doing ...?
You/They will (not) be doing ...	Will you/they (not) be doing ...?
He/She/It will (not) be doing ...	Will he/she/it (not) be doing ...?

2 将来进行时的基本用法

(1) 将来进行时通常用于表示最近或较远的将来正在进行的动作。如：

The train will be leaving in a minute. 火车很快就要开了。

In the future, we will be using advanced technology every day for automatic control of just about everything in our home. 在未来，我们将每天使用先进技术对家中几乎一切东西进行自动化控制。

In addition, your smart home will be monitoring your health for you. 此外，你的智能房屋还将监控你的健康。

(2) 将来进行时像现在进行时一样，可以表示已计划好的事。如：

We will be taking a test at this time tomorrow. 明天这时我们将在考试。

Don't call me between 12:30 and 13:00. I will be taking a nap. 中午 12 点半到 1 点之间不要给我打电话，我那时在午休。

Sorry, I can't meet you at five o'clock tomorrow afternoon, because I will be playing soccer then. 抱歉，明天下午五点我不能和你见面，因为那时我在踢球。

说明：

1 将来进行时有时也用来委婉地提出请求或者表达其他含义。试体会：

A: Will you be passing the post office? 你将会经过邮局吗？

B: Probably. Why? 可能吧。怎么了？

A: I need some stamps. 我需要些邮票。

B: OK. I'll get some for you. 好吧，我给你买回来。

2 将来进行时有时只单纯表示将来或按计划进行的事，而一般将来时则具有其他的意味。试比较：

I'll be working on this tomorrow. 明天我将做这件事。（表示将来，意思是按计划进行）

I'll work on this tomorrow. 明天我要做这件事。（表示意愿，也可能表示许诺）

Will you be joining us for dinner? 你会和我们一起吃饭吗？（表示将来，询问计划）

Will you join us for dinner? 你来和我们一起吃饭好吗？（发出邀请）

III The -ing Form 动词 -ing 形式 (3) (4)

动词 -ing 形式由“动词原形 + -ing”构成。在必修阶段，已经学习了动词 -ing 形式在句中用作定语、状语和（宾语）补（足）语，现在继续学习该结构用作主语、宾语和表语。

IV Subject Clauses 主语从句

在英语中，有的从句在复合句中的作用相当于名词，称作名词性从句。复合句中用作主语从句叫作主语从句。引导主语从句的词有连词that、whether（不能用if）；连接代词who、what、which；连接副词when、where、how、why等。主语从句要用陈述句语序。如：

That the earth is round is a fact. 地球是圆的，这是个事实。

Whether she will win the prize is still unknown. 还不知道她是否能够获奖。

Whoever is the last to leave should turn off the lights. 不管谁最后离开都应该关灯。

How this could be done was a good question. 这如何实现是个值得研究的问题。

Why she didn't show up remains a puzzle. 她为什么没来依然是个谜。

What some scientists have found is that their long-term use can sometimes harm both the land and people's health. 有科学家发现长期使用（化肥和杀虫剂）有时会对土地和人体健康都造成损害。

说明：

为了避免主语显得过长，尤其是陈述句作主语从句时，可以用it作句子的形式主语，把主语从句移到句子的末尾。如：

It is a fact that the earth is round. 地球是圆的，这是个事实。

It is unknown whether she will win the prize. 还不知道她是否会获奖。

It is believed by some scientists that the long-term use can sometimes harm both the land and people's health. 有科学家认为长期使用（化肥和杀虫剂）有时会对土地和人体健康都造成损害。
